	1. Business name and Ofsted number:
	Little Willows Day Nursery Bath – EY413022
	2. Who is your named Special Educational Needs and Disability contact?
	Chloe Fairbrother.
3.	Provide a short paragraph about your ethos/mission statement for including children and you people with Special Educational Need and Disability (SEND). How do you aim to meet the uniq needs of the child?
•	Little Willows prides itself on having a strong partnership with parents and families. We work with a alongside families and outside agencies to ensure the best possible outcomes for each individua child. This involves coming up with strategies together to meet the child's best interests. We are a inclusive and accessible nursery, set on one level, offering free flow, and enthusiastic, caring staff
4.	How do you identify that a child is not meeting appropriate age-related milestones and what o you do in this case? How do you find out what matters to the child and their family?
•	We constantly observe children, taking snapshots of their development and playing with them. We also complete a detailed report every six months and each child's progress are documented on a COHORT. This will highlight if a child is not meeting the appropriate developmental age. If there is anything we are concerned about, the SENDCo will be alerted and further observation will take place and this will be monitored, with maximum input from parents and carers. When some evidence has been collected, we will have a meeting with the family to discuss next steps and options and discuss what would be best for the child and the family, whether this to be target-setting within the setting seeking assistance from other professionals.
,	5. How do you promote positive relationships and ensure good, ongoing communication with families? How will families know what progress their children are making, how to access additional support and what they can do at home to help?
•	All parents receive a verbal handover, about what their child has been up to, and any other importal information, for example, what they have eaten/how they have slept, that day. Parents and carers a welcome to request a communication book, in which information received at verbal handover is written down. The children all have an online learning Journal known as Parenta, in which all observations, photos are kept, and information about the day (food and nappies), parents have dire access too. We also promote regularly meeting with parents and professionals so that everyone is kept update and working together.
6.	How will you communicate with other providers who care for a child, or with providers who wi be caring for the child? How do you support children to experience a smooth transition to scho or a different situation?
•	We often use communication books if the child attends two settings and will often talk on the phor and via email. We will do everything to ensure transitions are smooth, including settling in session with keyperson, and if to another setting/school, start the transition process months in advance, organising meetings and sessions together. These can include TAF or TAC (Team around the family Team around the Child) meetings.
7	. How do you provide an enabling environment for all the children in your care? Are there quies areas and fully accessible spaces? What other adjustments can you make? What about the physical environment in and outside your setting?
٠	In every room there is a quiet/cosy area for children to retreat to. Our setting is fully accessible and all on one level. We have a disabled toilet and ramps where needed. The outside area is also fully accessible, with large open spaces for children to explore and smaller, cosier areas with trees and climbing frames. Most rooms offer constant free flow where possible, so children are able to choose their own preference.

8. What qualities, skills and experience do you (and your staff) must support a child's unique needs?

• Little Willows have dedicated, enthusiastic and caring staff. Chloe has lots of SEN experience, experience of working alongside other professionals and supporting children and families. Our priority is the child and their family.
